Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Tuesday 22 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cloudy in the north and west tomorrow, fine elsewhere.

This Evening and Tonight:
Early evening cloud and outbreaks of rain in the far northwest gradually spread across Scotland and Northern Ireland into northwestern parts of England and Wales overnight. Otherwise, a fine but cool evening followed by a chilly night with clear spells.

Wednesday:
Rather cloudy across Scotland, Northern Ireland and much of Wales and northern England, cloud thick for some patchy rain. Brighter, dry and warmer across the rest of England and Wales.

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Cloud and rain sink southeast across all areas Thursday. Clearer weather with showers follows to the north. Showers and thunderstorms are then likely across southern areas Friday and Saturday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.